2) v. }
3) Darrell Lee Lopez }
4) Supreme Ct. No 99235-5
5) Ct. of Appeals # 81337-4-1

[Request for waiver of filing fees etc.]

Motion

I'm request to proceed without the filing fee of $200 do to the fact I'm indigent and without funds to pay the $200 etc.

I was given a court appointed private attorney a Ryan Swanson - after I had the P.D.'s office dismiss and P.D. <sup>Amy</sup> ~~Swanson~~ Jones for misrepresentation - ineffective counsel - conflict of interest etc. Since they falsely <sup>represented</sup> me on a 2006 or? case from Whatcom county with the same cops - witnesses - etc etc involved in this case above. This was done on 6-26-20 all in the same hearing along with the false evd. from Judge Freeman as me being incompetent etc. So I'm deemed Indigent and nothing has changed my financial income etc. Unless you can get the Federal reserve - Triple A Gold bond <sup>sub to</sup> ~~reissue~~ reissue my bonds. A lady named Stephanie ~~curcuru~~ curcuru P# 202-452-3000 on contact miss Brown at the Board of governors to have the Inspector general do it. P# 800 827 3340

Other than that I have no vehicles - $ - houses - bank accounts or anything worth of value - except my wisdom - which is also being stolen in the way of inventions etc. and I'm disabled under the disability act etc. (see pages (287)-(297)-(31)-(38)-(39) (40)(3) of part (3) for "infringements and "special circumstances" along with page (40)(4) of part (3) and (2) of part (3) for my disabilities and mail fraud. etc.) "Conclusion / Declaration": I ask the filing fee be waived under special circumstances etc. and all I have is the cloths on my back - That all is true and fact to the best of my knowledge under penalty and perjury. Darrell Lee Lopez - P# 12-12-20

DESIGN V. UTILITY: A "design patent" protects an article's ornamental appearance (e.g., the way an article looks) (35 U.S.C. 171), while a "utility patent" protects the way an article is used and works (35 U.S.C. 101). The ornamental appearance of an article includes its shape/configuration or surface ornamentation upon the article, or both. Both a design and a utility patent may be obtained on an article if invention resides both in its ornamental appearance and its utility. For more information, see MPEP § 1502.01.

APPLICATION ELEMENTS

See MPEP chapter 1500 concerning design patent application contents.

1. ☒ Fee Transmittal Form (PTO/SB/17 or equivalent)
2. ☐ Applicant asserts small entity status. See 37 CFR 1.27
3. ☐ Applicant certifies micro entity status. See 37 CFR 1.29. Applicant must attach form PTO/SB/15A or B or equivalent.
4. ☐ Specification [Total Pages _____] (preferred arrangement set forth below, MPEP § 1503.01)
  - Preamble
  - Cross References to Related Applications
  - Statement Regarding Fed sponsored R & D
  - Description of the figure(s) of the drawings
  - Feature description
  - Claim (only one (1) claim permitted, MPEP § 1503.03)
5. ☒ Drawing(s) [Total Sheets _____] See 37 CFR 1.152 (10) inventions (10) pages
6. ☐ Inventor's Oath or Declaration [Total Pages _____] (including substitute statements under 37 CFR 1.64 and assignments serving as an oath or declaration under 37 CFR 1.63(e))

In accordance with 35 U.S.C. 202(c)(6) and 37 CFR 401.14(f)(4), the specifications of any United States patent applications and any patent issuing thereon covering the invention, including the enclosed provisional application, must state the following:

"This invention was made with government support under [IDENTIFY THE CONTRACT] awarded by [IDENTIFY THE FEDERAL AGENCY]. The government has certain rights in the invention."

WARNING:

Petitioner/applicant is cautioned to avoid submitting personal information in documents filed in a patent application that may contribute to identity theft. Personal information such as social security numbers, bank account numbers, or credit card numbers (other than a check or credit card authorization form PTO-2038 submitted for payment purposes) is never required by the USPTO to support a petition or an application. If this type of personal information is included in documents submitted to the USPTO, petitioners/applicants should consider redacting such personal information from the documents before submitting them to the USPTO. Petitioner/applicant is advised that the record of a patent application is available to the public after publication of the application (unless a non-publication request in compliance with 37 CFR 1.213(a) is made in the application) or issuance of a patent. Furthermore, the record from an abandoned application may also be available to the public if the application is referenced in a published application or an issued patent (see 37 CFR 1.14). Checks and credit card authorization forms PTO-2038 submitted for payment purposes are not retained in the application file and therefore are not publicly available.

Authorization or Opt-Out of Authorization to Permit Access:

When this Application Data Sheet is properly signed and filed with the application, applicant has provided written authority to permit a participating foreign intellectual property (IP) office access to the instant application-as-filed (see paragraph A in subsection 1 below) and the European Patent Office (EPO) access to any search results from the instant application (see paragraph B in subsection 1 below).

Should applicant choose not to provide an authorization identified in subsection 1 below, applicant must opt-out of the authorization by checking the corresponding box A or B or both in subsection 2 below.

NOTE: This section of the Application Data Sheet is ONLY reviewed and processed with the INITIAL filing of an application. After the initial filing of an application, an Application Data Sheet cannot be used to provide or rescind authorization for access by a foreign IP office(s). Instead, Form PTO/SB/39 or PTO/SB/69 must be used as appropriate.

1. Authorization to Permit Access by a Foreign Intellectual Property Office(s)

A. Priority Document Exchange (PDX) - Unless box A in subsection 2 (opt-out of authorization) is checked, the undersigned hereby grants the USPTO authority to provide the European Patent Office (EPO), the Japan Patent Office (JPO), the Korean Intellectual Property Office (KIPO), the State Intellectual Property Office of the People's Republic of China (SIPO), the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), and any other foreign intellectual property office participating with the USPTO in a bilateral or multilateral priority document exchange agreement in which a foreign application claiming priority to the instant patent application is filed, access to: (1) the instant patent application-as-filed and its related bibliographic data, (2) any foreign or domestic application to which priority or benefit is claimed by the instant application and its related bibliographic data, and (3) the date of filing of this Authorization. See 37 CFR 1.14(h)(1).

B. Search Results from U.S. Application to EPO - Unless box B in subsection 2 (opt-out of authorization) is checked, the undersigned hereby grants the USPTO authority to provide the EPO access to the bibliographic data and search results from the instant patent application when a European patent application claiming priority to the instant patent application is filed. See 37 CFR 1.14(h)(2).

The applicant is reminded that the EPO's Rule 141(1) EPC (European Patent Convention) requires applicants to submit a copy of search results from the instant application without delay in a European patent application that claims priority to the instant application.

2. Opt-Out of Authorizations to Permit Access by a Foreign Intellectual Property Office(s)

- ☐ A. Applicant DOES NOT authorize the USPTO to permit a participating foreign IP office access to the instant application-as-filed. If this box is checked, the USPTO will not be providing a participating foreign IP office with any documents and information identified in subsection 1A above.
- ☐ B. Applicant DOES NOT authorize the USPTO to transmit to the EPO any search results from the instant patent application. If this box is checked, the USPTO will not be providing the EPO with search results from the instant application.

NOTE: Once the application has published or is otherwise publicly available, the USPTO may provide access to the application in accordance with 37 CFR 1.14.

Under the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995, no persons are required to respond to a collection of information unless it contains a valid OMB control number.

In Nagorno-Karabakh, signs of escalating and widening conflict

BY ANDREW E. KRAMER
New York Times

MOSCOW

Armenia said Tuesday that Azerbaijan was employing longer range and more destructive types of artillery in fighting over the Nagorno-Karabakh region, now in its third day, and threatened to deploy heavier weapons of its own.

The Armenian Ministry of Defense also said that one of its jets had been shot down by a Turkish F-16. A spokeswoman said the Turkish plane had taken off in Azerbaijan, flown into Armenia, and shot down the Armenian military airplane.

Azerbaijan and Turkey denied this had happened. It was not immediately possible to confirm the Armenian claims about the planes or the Azerbaijani artillery barrage.

Fighting in Nagorno-Karabakh, an Armenian separatist enclave in Azerbaijan in a remote mountain area north of Turkey, began Sunday

gional Studies Center in Yerevan, said in a telephone interview.

Their appearance, he said, was another indication that the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict, which simmered for decades without much interest from outside powers, has now become part of Russia's broader competition for influence with Turkey and has led at least dozens of people, threatening to pull in two major powers in the region, Russia and Turkey.

The conflict began after diplomats missed chances to tamp down simmering tensions in the region over the summer, in part because their governments were distracted by the pandemic, analysts have said.

The Armenian Defense Ministry said that Azerbaijan had begun firing from two powerful Soviet-made rocket artillery systems. In response, the Armenian military threatened it would roll out unspecified heavier weapons.

Also on Tuesday, the Armenian Foreign Ministry said a civilian had been killed inside Armenia in a strike by a Turkish-made armed drone. Armenia has a mutual defense treaty with Russia but has not asked that it be activated because of the fighting.

Armenia and Azerbaijan fought a war over Nagorno-Karabakh in the early 1990s, a conflict that ended in a stalemate with a cease-fire but no settlement.

Periodic border skirmishes have ensued since then. But the fighting now is distinct from clashes in recent years because of its scale and because Turkey is more openly backing Azerbaijan, a fellow Turkic-speaking country.

Turkish armed drones, similar to the U.S.-made Predator, are being used widely for the first time in the disputed region in the fighting that broke out this weekend, Richard Giragosian, director of the Retaken place in mostly populated areas formerly inhabited by ethnic Azerbaijanis in a security buffer zone around the Nagorno-Karabakh region, which has declared itself an independent country but is not recognized as such by other nations. About 600,000 Azerbaijanis were driven from Nagorno-Karabakh in the war three decades ago.

But shelling has also hit populated areas in Nagorno-Karabakh. The military of the breakaway enclave said Tuesday that 84 of its soldiers had died in the fighting.

Both Armenia and Azerbaijan have in the past threatened to target strategic infrastructure in one another's countries, such as dams or power plants, if war came. The Russian-made Tornado, or Smerch rocket launcher that Armenia on Tuesday accuse Azerbaijan of deploying, for example, has a range of more than 50 miles, enough to reach well into Armenia.

"They've said these things so we have to take them at face value," Lawrence Sheets, president Eurasian International Analytical, said in a telephone interview of the threats of strategic strikes. "We cannot discount it completely and we do know which direction will go."

On Tuesday, the Turkish foreign ministry said a statement cited by Turkish news agency Istanbul would support Azerbaijan diplomat and "on the battlefield needed."

Fed's emergency loans at center of political fight

BY JEANNA SMIALEK AND ALAN RAPPEPORT
New York Times

WASHINGTON

A political fight is brewing over whether to extend critical programs that the Federal Reserve rolled out to help keep credit flowing to companies and municipalities amid the pandemic-induced recession.

The dispute has the potential to roil financial markets, which have calmed significantly since the Fed announced in March and April that it would set up backstops in response to market turmoil spurred by the coronavirus pandemic.

Those programs expire Dec. 31, and it is unclear whether the Trump administration will agree to extend them. The Federal Reserve chair, Jerome H. Powell, and Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin must together decide whether they will continue the programs — including one that buys state and local bonds, another purchasing corporate debt and another that makes loans to small and medium-size businesses. The officials will probably make that decision by early to mid-December, according to a senior Treasury Department official.

The Fed might be inclined to keep the efforts going, but Mnuchin, whose Treasury Department provides the funding backing up the programs, has signaled that he would favor ending the one that buys municipal bonds. And he is under growing pressure from Republicans to allow all five of the Treasury-backed programs to sunset.

The programs' expiration could come at exactly the wrong moment, as the U.S. faces an expected surge in coronavirus cases this winter and as fiscal stimulus measures that Congress passed in the spring fade. While lawmakers have toyed with passing a new relief bill before next year during the lame-duck session of Congress, President Donald Trump's election loss makes the outcome highly uncertain.

"Cliffing the programs at year-end would be ill advised, opening markets up to a year-end disruption," said Scott Miner, the global chief investment officer at Guggenheim Partners, who expects the programs to be extended.

Lawyers generally agree that the Fed and Treasury can extend the programs without Congress — the way they are structured means that the Treasury has already made loans to the Fed, which then uses that money to insure against risk as it buys bonds and makes loans. The law that provided the funding allows such "existing" loans made from the government appropriation to remain outstanding.

If a coronavirus vaccine is rolled out in the coming weeks, the Treasury Department may be less inclined to extend the programs. Trump could also block a reauthorization by pressuring Mnuchin, leaving Joe Biden with fewer economic stimulus tools at his disposal.

There are some signs that the programs could expire without causing a catastrophe. Markets are functioning normally now, having calmed after the red signaled that it would set up the backstops. It might be that investors have overcome the panic of the spring and no longer need a backup option from the Treasury and Fed.

But it is also possible that the comfort and security provided by a Fed backstop is still needed.

Millions of people remain out of work, the service sector continues to be hard hit, and state and local governments are facing budget shortfalls, albeit smaller ones than some had initially projected. Further shutdowns, even localized ones, amid rising coronavirus cases could cause a reversal in risk taking that roils markets once more.

"Some market participants have asserted that the expiration of the municipal program 'may be a nonevent since its existence is not essential for market functioning any more,'" market analysts at Citigroup wrote in a recent research note. "These assertions are wrong, in our view."

of Azerbaijan under international law but have been controlled by Armenia since the 1990s war. Azerbaijan lost the war a quarter-century ago, but in recent weeks, Azerbaijan's firepower has proved superior, with the country's oil wealth funding a fleet of drones and other modern weaponry.

Armenia's Defense Ministry said Tuesday morning that combat operations along the front line had been suspended and that Russian peacekeepers were being deployed. In Azerbaijan, Aliyev described the agreement as one of his country's greatest triumphs.

"We are proud of our people, of our Arm Forces," Aliyev said on Twitter post the conflict, "these are the happiest ones."

In Nagorno-Karabakh, signs of escalating and widening conflict

BY ANDREW E. KRAMER
 New York Times

MOSCOW

Armenia said Tuesday that Azerbaijan was employing longer range and more destructive types of artillery in fighting over the Nagorno-Karabakh region, now in its third day, and threatened to deploy heavier weapons of its own.

The Armenian Ministry of Defense also said that one of its jets had been shot down by a Turkish F-16. A spokeswoman said the Turkish plane had taken off in Azerbaijan, flown into Armenia, and shot down the Armenian military airplane.

Azerbaijan and Turkey denied this had happened. It was not immediately possible to confirm the Armenian claims about the planes or the Azerbaijani artillery barrage.

gional Studies Center in Yerevan, said in a telephone interview.

Their appearance, he said, was another indication that the Nagorno-Karabakh conflict, which simmered for decades without much interest from outside powers, has now become part of Russia's broader competition for influence with Turkey

and has led at least dozens of people, threatening to pull in two major powers in the region, Russia and Turkey.

The conflict began after diplomats missed chances to tamp down simmering tensions in the region over the summer, in part because their governments were distracted by the pandemic, analysts have said.

The Armenian Defense Ministry said that Azerbaijan had begun firing from two powerful Soviet-made rocket artillery systems. In response, the Armenian military threatened it would roll out unspecified heavier weapons.

Also on Tuesday, the Armenian Foreign Ministry said a civilian had been killed inside Armenia in a strike by a Turkish-made armed drone. Armenia has a mutual defense treaty with Russia but has not asked that it be activated because of the fighting.

Armenia and Azerbaijan fought a war over Nagorno-Karabakh in the early 1990s, a conflict that ended in a stalemate with a cease-fire but no settlement.

Periodic border skirmishes have ensued since then. But the fighting now is distinct from clashes in recent years because of its scale and because Turkey is more openly backing Azerbaijan, a fellow Turkic-speaking country.

Turkish armed drones, similar to the U.S.-made Predator, are being used widely for the first time in the disputed region in the fighting that broke out this weekend, Richard Giragosian, director of the Re-

The fighting has so far taken place in mostly unpopulated areas formerly inhabited by ethnic Azerbaijanis in a security buffer zone around the Nagorno-Karabakh region, which has declared itself an independent country but is not recognized as such by other nations. About 600,000 Azerbaijanis were driven from Nagorno-Karabakh in the war three decades ago.

But shelling has also hit populated areas in Nagorno-Karabakh. The military of the breakaway enclave said Tuesday that 84 of its soldiers had died in the fighting.

Both Armenia and Azerbaijan have in the past threatened to target strategic infrastructure in one another's countries, such as dams or power plants, if war came. The Russian-made Tornado, or Smerch, rocket launcher that Armenia on Tuesday accused Azerbaijan of deploying, for example, has a range of more than 50 miles, enough to reach well into Armenia.

"They've said these things so we have to take them at face value," Lawrence Sheets, president of Eurasian International Analytical, said in a telephone interview of the threats of strategic strikes. "We cannot discount it completely and we don't know which direction this will go."

On Tuesday, the Turkish foreign ministry said in a statement cited by a Turkish news agency that Istanbul would support Azerbaijan diplomatically and "on the battlefield" if needed.

Quantum computing gets its "Hello World" moment, and water harvesters make a splash. BY STEPHEN ORNES

Approaching Quantum Supremacy

Tech experts have long championed quantum computers as the next generation of machine, promising to solve big problems in lightning-fast time, but the delicate chips exist in only a handful of labs. In the race to build the largest one yet, Google shot ahead in March when it unveiled Bristlecone, a 72-qubit device with low error rates. The previous record holder was a 50-qubit IBM machine.

Qubits do for quantum computers what bits, usually stored on transistors, do for classical computers: They carry out computations and store information. But unlike traditional Computing scientists at IBM (above) and elsewhere are working on achieving "quantum supremacy," when computers based on quantum processes will outdo traditional machines.

Topological Treasure-Trove

Condensed matter physicists rejoiced in July when they discovered that thousands of common, everyday materials likely have topological properties, meaning they can exhibit unconventional magnetic and chemical behaviors.

Just 11 years ago, scientists identified the first three-dimensional topological insulator, which lets electrons flow on the surface but blocks them in its interior. That mixed ability, tied to its structure, suggests a new way to control the behavior of electrons, and these materials could be the key to creating exotic electronic devices. Since 2007, physicists identified only a few dozen more topological materials.

What made July so exciting? Three independent teams scoured databases of materials and their properties to show that all kinds of substances — nearly a quarter of those that we already know — can have these surprising topological properties. With a new robust catalog in hand, physicists may be on the verge of finding just the right stuff for tomorrow's electronic revolution.

The particular shapes of topological materials, shown here in a computer model, make them a promising field of research.

FURTHER AFIELD

Repulsive Attraction

Engineers from the University of Minnesota reported in Nature Communications in May on ruthenium's newly discovered magnetic properties. The element is only the fourth in the periodic table — after iron, cobalt and nickel — known to be susceptible to magnetism at room temperature.

Spaghetti Solution

In August, researchers at MIT answered an enduring pasta conundrum: Is it possible to snap dry spaghetti, cleanly, into just two pieces? Yes, but you have to twist it approximately 270 degrees as you bend, easier to write than do. The find should help engineers better predict stress failures in rods, from pillars to nanotubes.

A Criminal's Cancer

According to a July paper in Trends in Genetics, chemists can now analyze the molecular tags attached to DNA found at crime scenes, potentially revealing not only the perp, but personal health data, like whether they have leukemia or are at higher risk for other diseases. The tool has sparked arguments about the ethics of collecting and using such information. A separate finding, in June's ACS Central Science, showed how traces of blood could even reveal the criminal's age.

GENES

Sickle cell affects millions, mostly Black people. Beta thalassemia strikes about one in 100,000 people. The only cure now is a bone marrow transplant from a closely matched donor without the disease like a sibling, which most people don't have.

Both diseases involve mutations in a gene for hemoglobin, the substance in red blood cells that carries oxygen throughout the body. In sickle cell, defective hemoglobin leads to deformed, crescent-shaped blood cells that don't carry oxygen well. They can stick together and clog small vessels, causing pain, organ damage and strokes.

Those with beta thalassemia don't have enough normal hemoglobin, and suffer anemia, fatigue, shortness of breath and other symptoms. Severe cases require transfusions every two to five weeks.

The treatment studied attacks the problem at its genetic roots.

In the womb, fetuses make a special type of hemoglobin. After birth, when babies breathe on their own, a gene is activated that instructs cells to switch and make an adult form of hemoglobin instead. The adult hemoglobin is what's defective in people with one of these diseases. The CRISPR editing aims to cut out the switching gene.

"What we are doing is turning that switch back off and making the cells think they are back in utero, basically," so they make fetal hemoglobin again, said one study leader, Dr. Haydar Frangoul of the Sarah Cannon Research Institute in Nashville.

The treatment involves removing stem cells from the patient's blood, then using CRISPR in a lab to knock out the switching gene. Patients are given strong medicines to kill off their other, flawed blood-producing cells. Then they are given back their own lab-altered stem cells.

Saturday's results were on the first 10 patients, seven with beta thalassemia and three with sickle cell. The two studies in Europe and the United States are ongoing and will enroll 45 patients each. Tests so far suggest the gene editing is working as desired with no unintended effects, Frangoul said.

"The preliminary results are extremely encouraging," he said.

The study was sponsored by the therapy's makers - CRISPR Therapeutics, with headquarters in Zug, Switzerland, and Massachusetts-based Vertex Pharmaceuticals. Some study leaders consult for the companies. Separately, Dr. David Williams of Harvard-affiliated Boston Children's Hospital gave partial results from a study testing a novel type of gene therapy that also seeks to restore fetal hemoglobin production for those with sickle cell.

Microwave attack likely cause of diplomats' illness

BY ANA SWANSON AND
EDWARD WONG
New York Times

WASHINGTON

The most probable cause of a series of mysterious afflictions that have sickened American spies and diplomats abroad in the past several years was radio-frequency energy, a type of radiation that includes microwaves, the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine has concluded in a report.

The conclusion by a committee of 19 experts cited "directed, pulsed radio-frequency energy" as "the most plausible mechanism" to explain the illness, known as Havana syndrome, although they said secondary factors may have contributed, according to a copy of the report obtained by The New York Times.

The strange illness struck scores of government employees, first at the U.S. Embassy in Havana in 2016, and subsequently in China and other countries. Many of the officers suffered from dizziness, fatigue, headaches and loss of hearing, memory and balance, and some were forced into permanent retirement.

CIA officers visiting overseas stations experienced similar symptoms, the Times and GQ magazine reported in October. The officers were traveling to discuss countering Russia covert operations with foreign intelligence agencies, a fact that adds to suspicions that Moscow is behind the episodes.

I contacted the CFP last week now there is news papers and TV. et.

Fed's emergency loans at center of political fight

BY JEANNA SMIALEK AND
ALAN RAPPEPORT
New York Times

WASHINGTON

A political fight is brewing over whether to extend critical programs that the Federal Reserve rolled out to help keep credit flowing to companies and municipalities amid the pandemic-induced recession.

The dispute has the potential to roil financial markets, which have calmed significantly since the Fed announced in March and April that it would set up backstops in response to market turmoil spurred by the coronavirus pandemic.

Those programs expire Dec. 31, and it is unclear whether the Trump administration will agree to extend them. The Federal Reserve chair, Jerome H. Powell, and Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin must together decide whether they will continue the programs — including one that buys state and local bonds, another purchasing corporate debt and another that makes loans to small and medium-size businesses. The officials will probably make that decision by early to mid-December, according to a senior Treasury Department official.

The Fed might be inclined to keep the efforts going, but Mnuchin, whose Treasury Department provides the funding backing up the programs, has signaled that he would favor ending the one that buys municipal bonds. And he is under growing pressure from Republicans to allow all five of the Treasury-backed programs to sunset.

The programs' expiration could come at exactly the wrong moment, as the U.S. faces an expected surge in coronavirus cases this winter and as fiscal stimulus measures that Congress passed in the spring fade. While lawmakers have toyed with passing a new relief bill before next year during the lame-duck session of Congress, President Donald Trump's election loss makes the outcome highly uncertain.

"Cliffing the programs at year-end would be ill advised, opening markets up to a year-end disruption," said Scott Miner, the global chief investment officer at Guggenheim Partners, who expects the programs to be extended.

Lawyers generally agree that the Fed and Treasury can extend the programs without Congress — the way they are structured means that the Treasury has already made loans to the Fed, which then uses that money to insure against risk as it buys bonds and makes loans. The law that provided the funding allows such "existing" loans made from the government appropriation to remain outstanding.

If a coronavirus vaccine is rolled out in the coming weeks, the Treasury Department may be less inclined to extend the programs. Trump could also block a reauthorization by pressuring Mnuchin, leaving Joe Biden with fewer economic stimulus tools at his disposal.

There are some signs that the programs could expire without causing a catastrophe. Markets are functioning normally now, having calmed after the

Fed signaled that it would set up the backstops. It might be that investors have overcome the panic of the spring and no longer need a backup option from the Treasury and Fed.

But it is also possible that the comfort and security provided by a Fed backstop is still needed.

Millions of people remain out of work, the service sector continues to be hard hit, and state and local governments are facing budget shortfalls, albeit smaller ones than some had initially projected. Further shutdowns, even localized ones, amid rising coronavirus cases could cause a reversal in risk taking that roils markets once more.

CRYSTAL CAT® IS BRUSHING
HER TEETH!

GET A PENCIL AND USE THE GRID BELOW TO
THE GRIDS WILL HELP YOU TO LINE EVERYTHING UP!

REMEMBER TO TAKE YOUR TIME.
YOU CAN ALWAYS ERASE OR PUT A NEW PIECE OF BLANK PAPER
OVER THE GRID AND START AGAIN
